Meal Charge and Debt Policy

- Students who are approved for the federally funded free or reduced-price meal program are not denied meals at any time.
- Students will not be denied a lunch once their meal account reaches a negative balance. However, meals will continue to be charged to the student's account.
- Parents/guardians are responsible for ensuring meal accounts are current for ALL students. Collection and meal balances owed will follow district policy on student fees, fines and charges, and may ultimately be referred to a collection agency.
- Meal accounts must be kept current and/or replenished when balances are low or in a negative status. When funds are put into a meal account, it will first cover any outstanding balances.
- Automated voicemail messages will be sent to parents/guardians starting three days before account balance reach zero for senior high students, and one day before the account reaches zero for elementary and middle school students, and continue until payment is received.
- A building principal or other designee may contact the parent/guardian to review the meal balance and discuss payment options.
- We encourage parents/guardian to sign up for PayPAMS - the district's online parent account management system for school meals. PayPAMS allows parents to make quick and secure online payments, track lunch account balances, view student food purchases, and set up low balance email reminders. To sign up, please visit www.paypams.com

Bloomington Public Schools is using a service to electronically recover insufficient fund checks returned to the School District along with a $30 state allowed fee. Questions about this service should be directed to PayTek Customer Service at 1-800-641-9998
